

Resilience Partners provides new financing to Peris Costumes, continuing a long-standing relationship

The direct lending firm Resilience Partners Fund II S.C.A., SICAR, has finalized a new investment, maintaining its commitment to fund the expansion and growth of SMEs. With this strategic move, Peris Costumes continues to consolidate its leading role in the costume manufacturing and rental industry and further enhances its presence on the global stage.

Reinforcing a relationship that has increased over the years, Resilience Partners takes pride in continuing its commitment to an outstanding team and enterprise. We're deepening our relationship with a business we've had the privilege of knowing for years, a testament to their spotless performance history and our firm trust in their team. This financing signifies not just an exceptional investment opportunity with a past portfolio company but also our commitment to support Peris Costumes' future prospects. The company does more than just preserving cultural heritage through costumes; they are at the forefront of integrating sustainable practices and pioneering technological solutions for the film industry, all the while maintaining a dominant position in the market.

Javier Toledo, Peris Costumes's CEO, shared, "Our association with Resilience Partners has always been profoundly beneficial. Having a long-term ally who not only understands our business but also offers flexibility is paramount to realize our objectives in the forthcoming years."

Commenting on the development, María Sabugal, who led the transaction on behalf of Resilience Partners, said, "Our primary objective remains clear: Offer flexible financing alternatives to remarkable SMEs and leadership teams. This empowers them to seize growth opportunities fully. We're more than thrilled to keep supporting a company we're familiar with, one that projects immense growth potential." This financing is undertaken through Resilience Partners Fund II, which is currently in its investment phase and has already finalized seven investments spanning diverse business sectors. The firm remains unwavering in its investment process, showcasing a strong pipeline and continually offering liquidity to its investors.
