

Resilience Partners Fund II closes its seventh investment by financing an investment in the AgriTech space

The direct lending firm Resilience Partners Fund II S.C.A., SICAR, has closed a new investment, furthering its commitment to finance innovative SMEs growth. Through this investment, BIC Capital in partnership with Mediterrania Capital Partners, has acquired a majority stake in Técnicas SanJorge, a Spanish provider of environmentally friendly agro-industrial solutions, to support its development and drive its international expansion.

With this financing, Resilience Partners is supporting an outstanding team and business which has grown dynamically over the last few years despite the macroeconomic challenges. Resilience Partners gains exposure to a business that generates a substantial impact in society by improving working conditions in the field, developing more efficient cultivation techniques as well as water efficiency and water saving solutions.

Daniel Viñas, Senior Partner at Mediterrania Capital, said: “We are thrilled to count with Resilience in this transaction. It is a key partner in this project due to its understanding of the industry and flexibility to accommodate to future growth levers”. On the other hand, Adriana Oller, Founder of Resilience Partners added: “We are supporting an outstanding team with experience in these transactions that will work together with the founders to take the company to a next phase through international expansion and new services development in a crucial sector going forward.”

This latest investment is carried out through Resilience Partners Fund II, currently under investment period having already closed seven investments across various business segments. The firm remains dedicated to its investment process, boasting a robust pipeline and consistently providing liquidity to investors.
